

Sheri L. Green

Construction Manager

Sheri L. Green comes to Greater Springfield Habitat for Humanity (GSHFH) with a wealth of experience. Officially, she's the organization's construction manager and is responsible for the overall management of all of GSHFH's building and construction, rehabilitation and repair projects, ensuring they are completed in a timely manner and within budget. To those who know her, Sheri's a godsend bearing a wealth of information and infinite amounts of patience as she often works with inexperienced volunteers and youth interested in pursuing a career in the trades.

Like many others, Sheri was introduced to Habitat and its mission after volunteering at a build site during a "corporate build." She and peers from her then-employer spent a day helping to build a home for a future homeowner. The experience lit a spark within Sheri and she became a regular volunteer. For the next two years, she spent two to three weekends a month on GSHFH build sites. In 2019, Sheri accepted the role of construction manager, her dream job.

Sheri's interest working in the construction trade began at a young age when she would help her dad with various projects, including repairing the basement, rewiring it, and building walls. Between 19 and 21 years old, she worked as a construction laborer or "grunt" picking up trash at a construction site. Later, she worked as a carpenter, proprietor, construction supervisor, and woodshop instructor at various companies around Western Massachusetts. Overall, she has more than 29 years' experience in the trades.
